Delinquent Tax No Bar To Loans

RULING ANNOUNCED AT INDI-ANAPOLIS BY ADMINIS-TRATION DIRECTOR

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 6 (UP)— Indiana property owners who allowed taxes to become delinquent under an act of 1933 are eligible for government-insured federal housing loans, R. Earl Peters, associate director of the federal housing administration in Indiana, was advised today.

The ruling was made by W. D.
Flanders, director of field administration.

Some doubt had been raised whether Indiana property owners would be able to obtain the loans because of a provision which denies government insurance where borrowers owe delinquent taxes.

The loans are made by private banks and loan companies but are insured up to $2,500 by the FHA.

In ruling that Indiana property owners may be eligible for the loans, Flanders said that the 1933 act removed unpaid taxes for years prior to 1933 from the delinquent category.

His ruling said:
"Taxes will not be considered delinquent unless property is subject to sale or the owner is subject to penalty for non-payment.

"Thus, if provisions of the act of the Indiana legislature have relieved the property owners from penalties while taxes are being paid in the manner provided for under the act, loans made on such property will be eligible for insurance."

The 1933 act provided that property owners who owed taxes for the year 1932 or earlier but who paid their 1933 assessment may pay the delinquencies in semi-annual payments over a period of 19 years without fear of penalty or sale of property.

Kiwanis Club Holds Meeting

VACATIONISTS PROVIDE PRO-GRAM AT LUNCHEON
THURSDAY

Kiwanians who have returned from their summer vacations provided the program for the club at its regular weekly luncheon at the First Christian church Thursday noon. Short talks were made by the Rev. Robert T. Beck, Prof. Earl Bowman, Dr. Gilbert Rhea and Prof. William Bishop.
The program was in charge of Harvey Walls.

Russell Brown offered a suggestion to the club that it sponsor the preservation of old relics of Putnam county. He cited the fact that the late Jesse W. Weik had a collection of Lincoln papers that were world famous and might have been secured for the county as a memorial to the great emancipator. Visitors would have come from great distances to view this collection.

President Ernest Stone, following discussion on the part of the club, appointed a committee with Mr.
Brown as chairman to work with Glenn Lyon and Prof. Bishop on the project. The committee will make its recommendations to the club at a future meeting.

LONG STARTS GRAFT PROBE IN NEW ORLEANS

LOUISIANA "KINGFISH" FINDS WITNESSES ARE SCARCE
FOLLOWING ARRESTS

EXAMINE CITY RECORDS

Senator Huey Long Faced With Problem Of Getting Citizens To Testify As To Vice

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6, (UP)—
Faced with a shortage of witnesses, Senator Huey P. Long and his legislative investigating committee turned today to the New Orleans city administration's book and records for proof of "graft" in the city government.

At the suggestion of the kingfish, the committee authorized the employment of Gerald Murphy, an accountant, to examine city records.
Murphy has authority to hire as many assistants as he deems necessary.

It became apparent Saturday, that the senator was going to be faced with an increasingly hard task in getting witnesses to testify about police "graft."

His "star" witness Saturday, a Mrs. Menendez, was promptly arrested on a vice charge. She then denied to police her sworn testimony before the committee.

Henry R. Long, another witness Saturday, who "told all" about the alleged policy games in the city, and the graft accruing to police from this form of gambling, is now in jail. He is charged with issuing a worthless check to a local paper company in the amount of $240.57.

Robert Faust, a political camp follower, who also testified Saturday, has fled the city. It was reported he was spirited away under a heavy guard, after he reported he "was afraid for his life."

So with all his power, the senator is faced with a stiff problem. No longer do the citizens seem eager to rush to the investigating headquarters on the 18th floor of a downtown skyscraper, to tell the world about New Orleans' sins.

Meantime, the militia still guarded Long's home, and escorted him on public appearances.

The 26 "spite" bills which he authorized, and slammed through the subservient legislature at a special session, become effective at midnight tonight.

They place in his hands through Gov. O. K. Allen, control of the state through unlimited police power, and a throttling of the state courts.

Bowling Alleys To Open Monday

WIVES OF ROTARY AND KIWANIS
MEMBERS IN SPECIAL
MATCH AS FEATURE

A special match between two teams of women, wives of members of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, will mark the formal opening of the new bowling alleys on the west side of the public square Monday night. Mayor W. L. Denman will roll the first ball as another feature of the opening.

The alleys are being installed in the Sudraski building by W. D. Hadley, of Wilmington, O., and W. C.
Packard, of Charleston, Ill. "Healthful recreation in an atmosphere of refinement" is the slogan adopted by the management and every effort will be made to promote clean entertainment. The four alleys will employ eight local men as pin setters and six Greencastle young women as score keepers, recommended by prominent citizens.

It is planned to organize teams among the ladies as well as men sponsored by local business firms.
The management also plans to bring out-of-town teams here in accordance with all the requirements of the Ohio
"Duck Pin" Association.

Due to the fact that two tilts are scheduled in the city soft ball league for Monday night, time for the opening of the alleys has been set for 9 p. m. so as not to conflict with the games.

Hail Laborers As Founders Of "New Germany"

HITLER REVIEWS 50,000 MEM-BERS OF LABOR ARMY AT NUREMBERG

NUREMBERG, Sept. 6 (UP)—Fifty thousand workers in Adolf Hitler's labor service army, bearing spades instead of rifles on their shoulders, heard the reichsfuehrer hail them today as "the legions which are laying the foundations of a new Germany."

The great ceremonial, marking the second day's session of the Nazi party convention, was held in the spacious "Zeppelin Meadow," where fully 200,000 spectators gathered to see the labor army honored.

The workers' ranks, uniformed in dull brown, stood for two hours in the bright sunshine awaiting Hitler's arrival. Then, as he briskly mounted the tribune, they presented spades.

The polished metal of their spades flashed a glittering salute to the president-chancellor, and the conclave burst into a tremendous "Heil Hitler." Then there was complete silence for a moment.

A bugle signalled for the military pageant, and ten companies marched forward in goose-step, assuming a company formation that extended across the whole stadium.

A brilliant touch was provided by hundreds of standard bearers who took up their positions behind the ranks of the service troops, and to the accompaniments of ringing trumpets, waved their banners aloft for fully five minutes.

Bands then played "I Had a Comrade," and a large chorus sang.

Flanked by Konstantin Hierl, chief of the labor service, Paul Joseph Goebbels, Herman W. Goering, Wilhelm Frick, Gen. Werner von Blom-berg and other Nazi leaders, Hitler spoke for 15 minutes.

The reichsfuehrer then proceeded to the Adolf Hitler platz, where he reviewed the labor service marchers in a two hour procession.

Admits He Shut Girls In Icebox

AFTER ASSAULT, BROTHER
TELLS SHERIFF

SACRAMENTO, Cal., September 6, (UP)—Servino Paiva, 15 years old, confessed to authorities yesterday that he and his brother James, 12, locked their small sisters in the family ice box last Saturday, where they died of suffocation.

Servino previously had admitted he criminally assaulted the two children, Mary 6 years old, and Marion, 7, who were buried Wednesday.

A mental examination was planned for Servino. Authorities meanwhile sent deputies for James, who was at the ranch home near Wilton where the tragedies occurred.

Servino did not implicate James in the assault admission.

The confession was made to Sheriff Donald Cox in the presence of the children's father, Harry Paiva, rancher.

Servino denied he locked the children in the ice box to conceal the fact that he had assaulted them, on the morning of their deaths, and the other two days previously.

He said he and James returned from the hop fields where all members of the family except the two little girls and a baby brother were employed, to eat lunch at the ranch house.

While they ate, he said, the girls removed the dishes of food from the ice box and climbed into the small compartments. Servino said they asked him and James to close the door. They did.

Before leaving for work, Servino said, they opened the door but the girls begged them to close it again, so they complied and left.

Unable to obtain sufficient air, the girls suffocated. Their bodies were found when the parents returned at night. Bloodied fingers indicated their fight for freedom.

An 18 year old sister of the boys, with whom Servino charged he had relations, also was to be questioned.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6, (UP)— Industrial warfare spread like wild-wounded on southern battlegrounds as bloody reminders to President Roosevelt's inquiry board of the need for haste.

Troops were rushed to danger points in North and South Carolina at the fifth day of the great walkout brought rioting, sabotage and death.

Meanwhile, a United Press survey indicated more than 350,000 textile workers were out, and the strike 55 per cent effective in New England sons have been killed in the south.

ATLANTA, Sept. 6, (UP)—Violence flared along the Mason Dixon line today bringing death to 10 persons in the turbulent textile strike, nearly 100 were injured.

Guns roared at Hones, S. C., when the day shift at the Chiquola Manufacturing plant attempted to push their way through 600 pickets.

When the smoke had cleared away and deputies had restored order six persons were dead and at least 15 wounded. Another man died at Augusta, Ga., today bringing the total there to three.

John Black, unemployed, was shot to death today as he approached the ports of clashes at mill gates came

NEUTRALITY VIOLATION

CHARGED BY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6, (UP)—Vessels which the United States department of state ruled were "war craft" were sold to Italy in 1916 by the Electric Boat Company "in violation of the neutrality laws," Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, D. Mo., charged today at the senate munitions inquiry.

Boat company correspondence showed that the order was negotiated by Paul Koster, the submarine-building firm's Paris agent.

The warcraft sale disclosure followed on evidence that two Spanish naval officers bearing passes made out to boat company officials had inspected submarines a year before the United States entered the World war.

RETURN OF PROF. ROGERS

REVIVES SILVER ACTIVITY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6, (UP)—The impending return of Prof. James Harvey Rogers to the United States today turned attention of American experts toward new moves for world wide silver rehabilitation.

With its own silver policy well-launched, it was believed likely that conversations would be resumed with Great Britain, France, China and other nations in an effort to promote greater use of silver as money.

Such a development was seen as an aid to the American program which includes heavy purchases of the metal and its use as a backing for new currency.

Conferences regarding the international silver situation have been at a standstill since last May. However, the return of Rogers may give them a new start. The professor, an administration monetary expert, has been studying silver in the Orient since last winter.

TEN-YEAR-OLD LETTER MAY WIN ESTATE

SACRAMENTO, Cal. (UP)—Because she saved a letter received ten years ago, Mrs. Velma Storrie of Perrin, Tex., probably will inherit the estate left by her uncle, Martin V. Storrie.

Storrie died last February without leaving a will. Public Administrator H. A. Koch took charge of the estate and began a search for relatives. He recently located the niece in Texas.

Mrs. Storrie forwarded a letter received from her uncle in 1924 while he was mining in the Sierra range east of here. In it he stated "when I am called to the happy hunting grounds I want you to have all my earthly belongings."

Koch filed the letter in superior court as Storrie's will. The estate was listed as "less than $1,000" in value.

MURDER AIDED PASSPORT THEFT BY CRAZED MAN

PETROPALOVSK, Kamchatka, (UP)—Crazed by fear that a former crime would be discovered, Michael Kolesov, fugitive son of a Siberian "kulak," with an accomplice, killed his roommate here and chopped his body to bits in order to steal the dead man's passport.

Kolesov stole two horses from a collective farm in a Siberian village. Escaping, he wandered from town to town, finally reaching Petropalovsk where he shared a room with a young workman, Ivan Fedorchenko. He also made friends with another youth, Boris Guriev.

Presently word reached here that the "passport system" would be introduced. The young workman Fedorchenko acquired a passport without trouble. Meanwhile, Kolesov was in an agony of fear lest officials should discover his recent theft and punish him.

To avoid this, Kolesov induced Guriev to help him kill Fedorchenko and steal his passport. The two chopped the young workman's body to bits and buried it outside the town.

Armed with the passport, Kolesov fled on skills to a distant part of Kamchatka. But militiamen arrested him. Kolesov was sentenced to ten years imprisonment. Guriev to seven years.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks dark, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, pure vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Request a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

near Hartford City, Dr. Thursman B. Rice, chief epidemiologist of the state board of health reported today.

Six deaths have been recorded in the area, he said. Three deaths have been attributed positively to the disease in Evansville, where eight cases now are being treated.

Dr. J. W. Jackson, assistant epidemiologist, returned today from Evansville after making a study of conditions there.

Six deaths had been attributed to the disease in Evansville but Dr. Jackson said that only three of them had been positively diagnosed as encephalitis.

There was the man who shot a deer, had the head mounted and hung in his den. One winter evening the mounting loosened from the wall, struck him on the head and fractured his skull.

A fisherman hauled a big catch into his canoe. The wriggling fish struck his gun and he was seriously wounded.

A hunter who blew his nose noisily was shot by a fellow nimrod who mistook him for a moose.

"The AFFAIRS OF CELLINI"

a 20th Century Picture starring Constance Bennett and Fredric March

See the picture at Loew's week beginning Saturday

FOUR HUNDRED years ago and a little more, during the winter of 1533-1534, to be precise, the Pope, having seen an exquisite chalice, the work of Benvenuto Cellini, commissioned that talented goldsmith to fashion a reliquary in which the Host might be carried. Which the man did, and other things besides. It was his way to give good measure, once he had been commanded, and while completing the reliquary he set himself, as he tells us, to make the Pope's portrait on a medal, and first of all he had to make the steel dies for both sides of it. At this time also he made love to Virginia.

Even if these varieties of effort seem unrelated, who shall say they really were? Benvenuto himself, who had an eye for coincidence, recognized the hand of God in unexpected places. Had he not been serving the Pope, he might have stayed in his native Florence, but if he had stayed in Florence he would not have discovered the charm of Virginia, whom the will of Heaven had located somewhat obscurely in Rome.

Benvenuto's simple faith has not received from careless readers the credit it deserves. In the ordinary channels of piety he was correct, and his moral honesty was unusual. Who is without frailties? He recognized his for what they were, never trying to elude conscience by blinking a fault. He committed few murders without hoping he might be forgiven. In moments of extreme danger he improvised eloquent prayers, as he could not have done had he not been brought up, and if we may believe his own testimony, once when he was in jail he studied the Bible.

But beyond these spiritual supports he relied with confidence upon the central unity of life, especially of his own life, which he hugely enjoyed, all things in it working together for good. There would be moments, of course, to which a hasty opinion might ascribe no concatenating usefulness. For a while it seemed a mistake to arouse the Pope's interest in the portrait medal, with so much work already on hand, and the presence of Ascanio in the shop made any work difficult. Ascanio was an assistant, faithful but incompetent, whom he had brought from Florence. At times he wondered why. When he was out one day, Ascanio sold a ring to a notary named Ser Benedetto, who was the friend of a certain named Ser citizen who had access to the Pope, and because Ser Benedetto was so well connected, so there was no payment to ask for a cash payment, so there was no payment at all. Whenever Benvenuto was over-tired and irritated, he would urge Ascanio to complete the transcribed by collecting the money, and Ascanio would act by promise to, immediately after the next daybreak.

For a while it seemed as though Ascanio would be of little aid in the matter of Virginia. Virginia lived at little aid in the matter of Virginia. Virginia lived with her mother, who was called Maria. Small wonder that a good man should be drawn to a house where the family names sounded of chastity. Benvenuto admired Maria, who was beautiful and old, until he met Virginia, who was beautiful and much younger, and from that moment he was distracted in the way, and Ascanio might have social tact. But the honest fellow would knock at the door, of an evening, and ask Maria if Benvenuto had come home yet from his walk with Virginia, when Virginia had got permission to leave the house after dark only by swearing she wished to visit the sick.

In a sense Benvenuto was sick, but it was the pleasantest of maladies. Virginia had black eyes, white teeth, a figure which curved in and out at the right places, and a heart which though untrained was disposed to learn. Benvenuto was a handsome man, with an adorable beard, and a voice rich in what the technical call overtones, and he had better things to talk to her about than sculpture or metal. Though her mother's prejudice made their meetings furtive, it isn't after all the length of the rendezvous which counts.

Just when he was wondering whether he ought not to elope with the girl back to Florence, and even marry her, and send on the Pope's portrait when and if he had time to get at it, Maria came on the lovers one night in the shadows of the Coliseum. Benvenuto explained that he was making an experiment in necromancy, but the mother believed her eyes. When next he called at the house, it was empty. She had fled with Virginia, to save what was left. For two months he went looking through the hill towns and the villages, and though he saw many a good-looking girl, it wasn't the right one. He would have continued the search if the Pope had not worried about his portrait and demanded evidence of progress. Benvenuto, as we intimated before, respected the Pope, who had, moreover, an effective police department. For once the unity of life didn't hold. Virginia was lost. In her place, nothing but the toil of the shop, and the inescapable society of Ascanio!

Yet precisely at this point the demonstration of providence began. Mad with grief, Benvenuto cursed Ascanio for letting Ser Benedetto steal the ring, and Ascanio protesting that the gentleman didn't steal it, and Benvenuto said then the thief must be Ascanio, for one or the other was holding the money back.

Ascanio, seeing that his employer was in earnest at last, started to collect the bill, and being without courage, he pretended to be bold, and over-acting, through inexperience, went on from firmness to in-sult, until Ser Benedetto drew a knife and would have slit his throat, had he not run. Thereupon Ser Benedetto, unwilling to put the knife away unused, walked the streets till he met Benvenuto, who when he saw the knife coming, reminded the notary that Ascanio handled all the money matters of the firm, but the notary swore he'd as soon kill one rascal as another, so they began to argue. Benvenuto, having left his knife at home, picked up a handful of filth from the gutter, and in his haste he overlooked, as one will, a sharp stone in the center of the mud-cloth, which stone, when the mud was applied to the notary, knocked him senseless. Benvenuto dusted off his hands and went home, with an easy conscience, having done only what one must.

But a friend dropped in to say that the notary was dead, and the notary's friend had objected to the murder. Benvenuto ran for his life, and didn't stop running until he came to Naples.

And there, at the first inn, was Virginia waiting for him! Her mother, believing her safe, had gone to visit an aunt, twenty leagues away, and wouldn't be back for a week.

They should have lived happily ever after. The notary wasn't dead, only stunned, and the Pope sent word to come back and bring Virginia along and finish the portrait.

But the will of Heaven, though inexorable, is surprising. In the end Virginia couldn't get on with him. Neither could the Pope.

TO START CONSTRUCTION

OF POLICE RADIO STATIONS

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 6 (UP)—Actual construction of broadcasting stations in the state police radio system will be started within a month. Al G. Feeney, safety director, announces.

The announcement followed approval by Gov. Paul V. McNutt of the appointment of Paul G. Andres, Indianapolis, as temporary engineer in charge of construction.

The first station in the system will be erected at the state fairgrounds, Feeney said.

It will be the key unit of the system and will be followed by construction of smaller plants in each of the four corners of the state.

Although locations of the four substations have not been selected, it is expected they will be erected near Gary, Fort Wayne, Evansville and North Vernon.

Initial costs of the system are being borne by a $30,000 donation from the Indiana Bankers' association and a $20,000 gift by Governor McNutt from his emergency contingent fund.

The state legislature will be asked to appropriate funds for maintenance next year. The system is expected to cost approximately $50,000 annually to operate.

Through operation of the state police radio, Feeney believes the state will have taken its greatest step toward solution of the crime problem of Indiana.

"There have been countless holdups and bank robberies which could have been averted or quickly solved had we been operating a state police radio system," Feeney said.
